

Your financial journey

Because no two journeys are the same

Throughout your own multidimensional life journey, you may go through several common life stages, each carrying potential financial implications. Your goals will likely shift at each stage of your journey and your financial strategy should reflect your changing priorities.

In this seminar, we will talk about how you can prioritize the things that matter most to you career, relationships, family and how to plan for your goals throughout your unique journey. We'll discuss:

- How the pay gap accumulates over the course of a woman's lifetime
- Why women need to start thinking about funding a 100+ year life span
- How to make investment decisions that will help pursue your goals
- Taking care of others, and ways to help maximize and protect your finances
- What women can do to help make sure they're well positioned for success

Join us to learn how you can plan ahead to take control and finance the life you want to live.

You're invited to a complimentary seminar.
